

Prostate Cancer Expert System Diagnostics Result

2019-11-08 14:05:30

♣Doctorina Patient

Date of Birth: 2019-07-27

Symptoms

['age ->22', 'freq_night_urination ->False', 'bloody_semen ->False', 'painful_urination ->True', 'bloody_stool ->True', 'weak_urine_flow ->True', 'painful_eju ->True', 'inad_erec ->True', 'erectile_dysfunc ->True', 'pain_in_bones ->True', 'swelling_lower_limbs->True', 'psa ->stable']

Results

You're welcome patient. Age Factor is 6 About PSA level: You seem to have low risk of having a prostate cancer tumor from your PSA level answer, but you should take further tests, monthly About number of symptoms: You seem to have a high risk of having a biopsy detectable prostate cancer since their attribute are that of prostate cancer Overrally: You might possibly have a medium risk of having a biopsy-detectable prostate cancer despite your age where there are rare cases of prostate cancer diagnosis. So please see the doctor immediately for further examinations. However, the risk of you getting a prostate cancer tumor is about 4% considering your age factor.

1 of 2 8/11/2019, 16:30

Treatments

With stage II, you should consider the following treatments: 1. Active surveillance. In this stage, it's typically used if you're a much older man or you have other serious health problems. 2. Radiation therapy, possibly combined with hormone therapy. Those are drugs that stop testosterone from helping your cancer cells grow. 3. Radical prostatectomy.

2 of 2 8/11/2019, 16:30